

2/26/2016	Tom bush	To ban divers is absulety dumb, every diver on Capt SL8Rs picks trash fishing line beer cans and beer bottles on every dive, spear fisherman are lucky to be able to get one possibly two fish when they go on a boating trip the amount of money they spend on spearguns and taxes is enormous and you take this away would put a lot of people out of work and I never see them destroying the wreath contrary they're always picking up the trash
2/25/2016	ROXANN	Hi saw an article THE PELICAN about regulation re scuba and shooting fish.. Man wrote' PEOPLE DON'T REALIZE THAT SHOOTING FISH ON SCUBA IS VERY DIFFICULT" BOY OH BOY THAT IS NOT TRUE MOST HAVE A SPEAR GUNS.. IN THE BAHAMAS YOU CANT USE A SPEAR GUN WITH SCUBA ONLY A HAWAIIAN SLING... AT LEAST THE FISH HAVE A CHANCE. YES REGULATE THAT..
2/6/2016	David Garrett	Your message is outstanding but in your list of highest threats you do not list the massive invasion of lionfish. You just barely mention their existance. Look at the studies already done on lionfish. Lionfish are the main threat to our delicate ecosystem. Although there is more awareness now than a few years ago, volunteer removal, derbies and commercial harvest for human consumption are not enough. A bounty needs to be paid to incentivize every available diver to kill as many as posible. Www.lionfisheliminators.org
2/1/2016	steve maldonado	Why don't you people go after the ones that approve of dumping lake Okeechobee. Make a difference there instead of trying to ban fishing/spearfishing. Also the commercial fisheries and their lobbyist are another good target and probably cause biggest impact.